THE MODERN "CLAMOUR OF NATIONALITIES."

"Despite the undisputed growth of Imperialism and the constant accretion of vast Empires, there are not wanting signs," says Albert Wirth, writing in the Neue Rundschau, "that this is preeminently the day of nationalism." Herr Wirth, who is a well-known German journalist and traveller, has recently returned from an extended journey throughout the civilised world. He is firmly convinced "that the smaller nationalities of the earth are more in evidence to-day than ever before. Here is some of his testimony :-THE FERMENT IN RUBSIA.

"In 1905, the Rassian Poles awoke and gained self-consciousness, but at the same time the Lithuanians also awoke. All at once the Lithuanians possessed a number of newspapers and an abundance of national leagues. They already demand the use of the Lithuanian language in the Church. The Poles are against it, but the weaker party—the Lithuanians. Divide at impera. Further down in the south Great Russians, Ruthenians, and all of them together are against the Jew and the German.

"Such dissensions, however, exist," the German writer continues "because they are not the result of sophistic diplomats; they are an elemental phenomenon.

"A phenomenon of that nature may, of course, be diplomatically utilised or ignored. It is a phenomenon that may be observed in Protestant South Africa and in Catholic Brazil, in the "Christian world as well as in the Buddhistic and Mohammedan world; in short, in all parts of the globe. Australia in prejudiced against the yellow race and the Hawaiian Kanakas, and has excluded Dalmatian vineyard labourers. She greatest enthusiasm, as an aid against the dangerous Japanese and their immigration. on a struggle between indigenous whites Vocation: Mr.R. R. WHITE.

and white immigrants. "In France three-quarters of a million Bretons and some hundred thousand Basques and Corsicans stand aloof from the general body. "In Spain, Catalonians and Castilians are separated by a deep gulf. In Belgium, Walloons and Flornish struggle against each other. In Germany there are even three kinds of national enemies: the Frenchman of Lorraine, the Darren; and Poles, besides some minor thesand Lithuanians. In Austria, Russia, and Turkey the struggle of nationalities is CONSULTING ENGINEER an everyday phenomenon, but even Scandi-navia, peaceable as she is, has gone through similar experiences. Northern Europe, with its thin population, has preserved three or even four (Iceland) national types.

THE CLAMOUR IN ASIA. "In Persia, Kurds, Armenians, Arabs inhabitants of Boluchistan and Tartars of Aderbeijau; in India, Siam, China, Siberia -everywhere there is extreme disruption. Japan has a hard nut to crack in Formosa, being in a minority (one to sixty) against the Chinese and the Chinese dolk. Korea only has experienced no inner disruption and also no Irredentism, although she is filled with great indignation against the Japanese invision. I am inclined to think that the granite like, strong peculiarity of rthe Kerman will gain the victory."

BUILDING OF A NEW NATION.

Briton and Boor Join Hands in South Africa.

As announced in a telegram by Reutor to the China Mail on Tuesday evening, the Prince of Wales has consented to tour South Africa and to open the South African Union Parliament. It is possible that his Royal Highness will be accompanied by the Princess. The Union will be proclaimed on May 31st, 1910, and the Royal visit may, therefore, be expected to take place in the late Summer or early Autumn. The Reyal itinerary may include a visit to the Victoria Falls on the Zambesi. His Royal Highness will be attended be a distinguished staff, among whom will be Six Francis Hopwood, Permanent Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies.

In a recent number of The Outlook (New York), "An Ex-Consul" contributes a striking article on "The Building of a Nation in South Africa." After a brief reference to the Boer War and the events leading to the decision for federation,

AN UNPARALLELED STORT. Statesmen in England spoke openly of the danger which the sullen Boers would be to British dominion. It was predicted that several generations would pass before the enmity of the Dutch would be wiped away. Yet other statesmen decided upon an apparently foolbardy policy, and there being for the first time in power, were able to carry out their plans. They deliberately gave the privilege of representative institutions to the colonies where the Boers, smarting under defeat, were in the majority; and so the world was treated to the unparalleled sight of a conquered race having full legislative powers in country from which "the army o invasion had just withdrawn. It cor-818 tainly was a hazardous experiment, and in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred it would have failed. That it not only did not fail, but was completely satisfactory, is attributed to the very flerceness of patriotism which was supposed to be the chief obstacle in the path of peace. Had the Boers been a whit more devoted to their individual ambitions the experiment would probably have led to a countless number of "unpleasantnesses" here and there THOROUGHLY UP TO DATE WITH EVERY MODERN LUXURY; 252 throughout the new colonies. But because they loved their land, and thought only of [196] its welfare, they accepted the gift that was bestowed upon them and set themselves to work to make good the ravages of the war and to establish the country upon plasting basis of prosperity. THE DUTCH ARE NOT DISLOYAL. Not long ago I brought to the notice of of one of the foremost members of the Transvaul government a statement to the effect that the Dutch people were only ostensibly loyal and that when the chance occurred the whole nation would rush to arms again and renew the struggle for independence.

"I have seen several assertions of this kind," he replied, "but do you truly think that we are mad? What can we possibly gain by further resistance? That is the question which people should ask themselves before they make such statements. England has gives us a degree of indepengift. Of course we shall always treasure dence for which we dared not hope, and No. 34, QUEEN'S ROAD CENTRAL. assure you that we appreciate the the memory of the old regime, but that will not interfere with our making the best of the new. There is absolutely no founds. tion for believing that there is any undertion for believing that there is any under.

The Company has secured the services of Messrs J. Sommer and A. Somme republics."

That is the opinion of all the leaders of what may be called the Young Dutch party, and they are the men whose word will sway the minds of 90 per cent. of the people. It is simply an instance of rapid recognition of fact and earnest desire to do the best that may be done to save their beloved country from further distress and

The idea which the British residents of South Africa have in view in promoting a schome of federation is far less subtle than that which occupies the minds of the Dutch. Britain naturally desires to have every one of its colonial possessions in the most prosperous condition possible, and it is evident that South Africa a federated country, is infinitely preferable to South Africa a disconnected group of States. The ordinary English settler has no dislike for his Dutch neighbour, and is quite ready to make a friend of him. The war is over, and both eides fought well. It is not difficult for one of the conquering race to be magnanimous. Furthermore, the Briton always remembers the commercial aspect of eyery question and be sees that the business conditions of the whole country will be greatly improved

INFLUENCE OF THE COLONIALS.

There is a third factor in the case, and one that is often forgotten, but nevertheless is of great importance. This is the element which is called "Colonial"—that is, people who were born and bred in the colonies. In South Africa these colonial people are generally very pronounced in their loyalty to Great Britain, and at times they do not hesitate to speak in anything ; but glowing terms of their Dutch neighbours; but they and the Boers understand one it is almost impossible to draw the line between the races. Therefore the colonial may be considered as the intermediary between the two races, and may exercise a vast power for harmony. He can smooth the way to union as no one else can smooth it, and the comprehension of this truth is gaining prevalence every day. At the close his treatment of the Boers than was any Englishman, but that phase of affairs soon passed, and to-day the colonial understands that it is his duty as well as his privilege to take a prominent part in the frederation of importance than all the others. This is-the question of the governance of the natives, who in that country are a perceful and harmless race in these days, but no man can tell at what minute trouble may occur. Rebellion may spring up without an instant's warning and when that hap-shoulder to shoulder against a com-far distance—there must be uniform and intelligent legislation and execution of the laws throughout all the land. The conflict of differing laws in different States sets a promium upon discontent among the natives. The native question is the most serious problem before the people of South Africa, now and at all times, and great expectations are chrished of the benefits which will accrue to native administration

THE SPIRIT OF AMITY. "

It would be impossible to find a better such men as Dr Jameson (of Raid notoriety formerly the bitterest foe of the Boers).

Sir George Farrar, Sir Percy Fitzpatrick, and many others who were prominent in the British ranks. The leading men of all the colonies were there and British and Dutch were on terms of absolute unconstrained friendship. The extremely British residents of Durban thronged the hall at the opening ceremony, and watched with deep interest the arrival of the men whom

The Pioneer says with reference to the appearance in India of false rupees coined in China, the number detected is so large that it would seem that some kind of mint must have been established for their manufacture. The rupers are not of base metal but of good silver, the enormous profits to be secured by placing them in circulation making it unnecessary to run the risk of detection by the use of alloy. The Indian rupee which bean the King Emperor's head has not been a satisfactory one, for the design can easily be imitated and these Chinese rupees are so well struck that it is difficult to detect them as spurious except by expert examination. In weight and fineness they are above suspicion and the ordinary person, will accept them at once.

We do not know how bankers, European and Indian, are likely to deal with them, but there certainly seems to be a danger of their being gadually absorbed into general circulation. Measures will doubt-

CHINA AND TIBET. though it be in some of its dramatic details, scarcely comes as a surprise to any one who has been watching at all attentively the course of events in hat rather remote region of central Asia. Ever since the British Indian authorities, at Lord Cunzon's suggestion, sent Sir Francis Younghusband with an expedition to Lhassa to force from the is now in Santiago, Chile. reluctant Llamas a treaty opening up the erstwhile forbidden land to British- life from Singapore during January. w more strictly speaking Indian-trade China has been greatly alarmed at the possible fate awaiting the last of her old suzerain dependencies. By skilful diplomacy on her part, aided by the pusillanimous behaviour of the British administration, who mistrusted Lord Ouzon and all his works, the Youngnull and void of any effect, the British troops were all withdrawn and Great Britain practically acknowledged that Tibet must henceforth be considered part and parcel of the Chinese empire. With the way thus cleared for her China proceeded to convert a shadowy suzerainty into something far more ant pontiff of Tibet, who is supposed to be the reincarnation of an immeasureably long line of previous high pricets he took the long overhind journey. Many menths he spent in Peking, during! ployed to get him to consent to delegate or abandon some of his undoubted powers to Chies. But he was our obstinate, besides being a very patriotic, man and refused to surrender either his spiritual or his temporal prerogatives to the representatives of the Son of Heaven. The Empress-Downger at the unsatisfactory-from the Chinese

China rather winked at this, but when this evening. it was rumoured that the Dalai Llama was also considering the possibility of a flight to Russia, to there intercede for pretection against the machinations of at Calcutta. China, the Grand Council put down its foot and forbade any further lingering taking other measures. Borrowing from the examples furnished by Western nations she set to work to prepare a thoroughly up-to-date military expedition to occupy the land which she had failed by diplomacy to get into her complete control. Her proparations were made very quietly, hence the surprise which, we read in our special service of Reuter's telegrams, has been occa in India by the news now reaching the saw that half-measures would not meet the situation and has acted accordingly. She feared that the fate of Korea, of

Here is another interesting extract from the report: - Moissan, the celebrated French chemist, says that the smokers of best chandoo seem to be sapable of living to a great age, and of keeping in as good health as the greater number of tobacco smokers who do not smoke pipe or cigar to excess. With regard to smokers of chandoo of inferior quality his opinion is not favourable. He compares the two classes smokers, the one to the moderate drinker of good alcohol, the other to consumers addicted to absinthe: However, in the East the smokers of such second quality chandoo are the hardest working of any, and it seems to be impossible for any employer of labour to distinguish by any difference in physique, capacity for work, er in behaviour, the smokers from the nonsmokers. The opium smoking coolie probably as reliable a workman as any in the world. Opium smokers, both Asiatic and European, describe the taste of the smoke as mild and aromatic. There is no bitterness and this is of considerable importance as first pointed cut by McCallum (Pharmaceutical Journal, July 14, 1883). If two or three grains of a morphine salt be boiled in water, so bitter is the air by a delicate ralate at a distance of several feet. Yet the amount of morphine so volatilised is extremely minute. Therefore the amount of morphine that is taken in by ordinary opium smokers must be an almost negligible quantity; The innocuous nature of the smoke further shown by the fact that many European gentlemen have smoked comparatively large quantities at a sitting, without experiencing any marked sensations (McCallum in Journal quoted). In order to understand this subject fully pathy. It was too late to reconsider our and fairly it is desirable to consider Tibetan policy, but Great Britain could the habit of an ordinary coaling coolic accustomed to taking opium. By this last, only a very small part of the morphine in opium is taken into the system, and even when a comparatively large quantity is burnt the morphine taken internally is excessively minute. opium pills, and the administration of morphine by imjection, are likely to set up 25 the opium habit or craving, and an far as possible facilities for these methods of taking the stimulant should be restricted. 25 Excess in smoking, like excess of any other 25 kind, is also to be discountenanced; but this is in great measure guarded against by 25 the high price of the drug, which for most 25 people ensures its consumption in moderate 25 quantity. But there should be a limit even to the coat of chandee, for if prohibitive, smokers will resort to the other extremely cheap and admittedly more hazmful O methods of taking opium, or to cocainethe very worst form of narcobic indulgence.

During the whole of Chinese history thee, things had been lacking. A Chinaman living in his own country had never been secure in life or property and the administration of justice in the Chinese Empire had been a bye-word among the nations. When one considered that it was only in comparatively recont times that even the most modern of Western nations had had these blessings conferred upon them, it was still to be seen that China had lagged behind to agreat extent; yet .at the same time when China had been in contact with the West as long as the most progressive Western nations had been in contact one with another, possibly they in turn will be as far advanced as some of the Western mations now were, Mr Hind went on to refer to the adwantages secured to the Chinese by the opening up of the treaty ports and spoke of reforms which had come about by intelligent Chinese going into the country from such places as Hongkong and infinencing the officials in sarious beneficial ways. He spoke of the wasteful and unjust system of farming the taxes of the country and asserted that when the ideas now being inculcated at the Treaty ports were absorbed there would be such a change as no country, with the possible exception of Japan, had undergone during the last thousand years. In China land and women-(laughter)-were the two great causes of quarrel, and as disputes were settled according to the varied customs of different villages there was no one law applicable to the whole country. China was now seriously considering placing her laws on a uniform basis. In conclusion the speaker referred to the advantage secured by the introduction of railways, erection of mills, factories and iron and steel works, the tion of modern medical science. So China was, perhaps, better left slose. Western civilisation was unsuited to the Chinese nation and the dimate; the people were happier with their own system of government, which was, from their ideas of justice, more suitable this the system we offered. Our system of punishment They came to Hongkong, committed crime, and we crowded them into the gael. What was that punishment to them? Literally nothing. Then, too, by Western influence the Chinese were becoming stificial; they were neglecting their own work in which they were skilful. The result was that the London auction rooms were to-day clamouring for the very aris which the Chinese had now forgotten how to produce. SCOTTESH LETTER.

(From Our Scottish Correspondent). WAN PRINCIPALITY TITE. EDINAUBOR February 1.

Mr Asquith began his final tour through East Fife at Leven. His selection of thi busy industrial centre as the starting point was purhaps intended. It recalls memories of his earliest political association with the county, nearly a quarter of a century ago, when, an unknown English barristor, henowing. Entries close for Hongkong descended on the Fifeshire town, equipped for the first political fight of his career with a carpet bag, a stock of Liberal principles, a strong voice, and an indomitable courage. In the open air, at a wind-swept spot known as the Shore SHOOTING,-Reserves, 800 yards Peak Head, the electors mot their prospective condidate, heard his views, and adopted him, as their champion. Since that far-off! historic occasion, much water has run under the "Bawbee Brig" of Leven; but VORUNTEREING. - Rifle exercise and the political ties then formed between the squad drill, all units; Headquarters, 5.30 keen, eloquent young Englishman and his Scottish Liberal sponsors have remained unbroken to this day.

A WOUNDED WARRIOR. Mr Maldage made several short speeches to his constituents before the poll, and in spite of the painful illness from which he is suffering, he was in high spirits. He wore dark glasses, with a black bandage over his left eye; and his opening words were, "Here I am a wounded warrior, but recovered from his wounds;" anxious to celebrate "my silver wording with the constituency." He declared that he was "full of fight, full of energy, and with p.m.: a lot of new ideas." He had an arrangement in hand which would complete the fermation" of his new Army. Although he had been laid aside and unable to go out of a darkened room, he had not been idle during these weeks. He had been "taking stock, and all the stores and provisions for the Regular Army were more complete than they had been in recent times; all their cordite was there; all their rifles were there, both for the Territorials. and Regulars; and all the men were there He gave the statement that the War Office under his administration had "The reserve was enormous at this moment, larger than it had ever been before." He proceeded "on one principle only,-to make ready for war; and they might assume that the reserve was the one fixed by the General Staff as ample for our utmost necessities." As to the equipment of the Territorial force, "it was in a large measure already provided, and what remained was provided who required it in a few weeks."

LORD ROSEBERY ON UNIVERSAL TRAINING. Lord Rossbery has once more raised his voice on behalf of universal military training. At the James Watt anniversary dinner in Gisegow, after making a reference to British patriotism, he said-"It is possible, to my mind certain, than as time goes on, and within a pused not very remote, British manhood and patriotism may realise that it is their duty to take some part in the defence of their country, so that should a foreign enemy over land on our shores, if should find our sitizens, not an untrained horde anxious and willing to defend themselves and ignorant of how to do it, but

ENGLISH GIRLS FOR OVER-

SEAS. Problem of Unmarried

The following contribution to the correspendence on "Unmarried Daughters," is written to The Times by the father of a family of girls, who signs himself "Patriarch":-

Daughters.

"The number of young, healthy; and often fairly endowed English women who are and remain unmarried is an ovil. It is caused by the ever increasing migration of the young, healthy, and often fairly twenty-three. The Army, the Navy, the Civil Service, the law, the banks, and great Light. commercial enterprises all call for the best material and offer their highest rates of pay for men'to go out.

"TVhat becomes of the sisters of all these expatriated men? They stay at home and swell the ever-growing number of unmarried daughters. Many of these mon | 755 marry foreign girls who, however levely and estimable, are not of our hardy northern stock; some marry half-castes, and many more novel marry at all.

A SIMPLE PLAN. "Why be ashamed of the only prope and natural solution, of the only commonsonse method, which is to send your girls abroad, teo, to look after and keep house for the boys? I speak from experience as the father of a large family; the thing is to be done, and done properly, decently and in all good form. There is no idea of mar The s.s. CHINA will leave for San Francisco, via Shanghal, Nagasaki, Kobe, ringe, of course, when the girls start, but all is so natural and all so absolutely simple when conditions are normal that an exchange of a sister for another man's sister comes about as naturally as all other stages in a man's life.

"The demand is quite as great as is the supply, great as that supply is in England; the hindrance is the selfishness and want parents will let their houses for five or six years, or break up their home, or exchange the education of a young family because education means money; but how few would do this to enable their daughters to | night. live for a few years in the full tide of active life, though this may mean the happiness of these daughters when they themselves have joined the great majority.

"Once set about it, raise the money for the girls as money was raised for the boys. and the openings will not be wanting. The secret of success lies in the recognition of the fact that the unmarried daughters THE EASTERN & cannot go on their own initiative.

"I was commissioner in England for a highly paid civilian in India. His children were all under my care. The sons all went out to the East in the professions, and the unmarried daughters."

Hongkong Tides, The tide table given below has been compiled at the Nautical Almenso Office in London from the result of the enalysis of observations taken by means of an au tomatic tide-recording machine in the Water Police Basin at Tsim Sha Tsui during the years 1887-8-9.

. The zero of the table corresponds with 8 inches below mean sea level. To obtain the depth of water on the tid gauge at the Victoria Naval Yard add feet 4 inches, and on the gange at Lamont Dock, Aberdeen, add 10 feet 6 inches to the height given in the table.
